How Do We Live a Good Life — TOGETHER?

A Stewardship Appeal from the First Universalist Unitarian Church of Wausau

Dear Friends,

How do we live a good life — TOGETHER?

It's a question that has animated this congregation for generations. Since 1858, people have gathered at First Universalist Unitarian Church of Wausau to ask what it means to live wisely, compassionately, and with courage in our time. Each era brings new challenges, but the question remains:

How shall we live so that our lives deepen rather than narrow, and our hearts open rather than harden?

Every Sunday, in this historic space, we remind one another that we are not alone in asking these questions. Through worship and music, through service and friendship, through caring for one another and for the wider world, we explore TOGETHER what it means to live a good life — not just for ourselves, but for all.

In a world that often rewards cynicism, distraction, and division, this church calls us to something larger: to generosity, to hope, to the patient work of community. Here, we teach our children that kindness matters. We hold space for grief and wonder. We feed the hungry, welcome the stranger, and stand up for love and justice.

None of this happens by accident.

It happens because of YOU — your presence, your spirit, and your financial support.

Your pledge to UU Wausau's annual stewardship campaign makes it possible for this church to be a place where people still ask and live their way into the most important questions of life.

Will you join us in this effort?

Thank you for exploring how you might share in our mission to build a world — and a community — where we can live the good life, TOGETHER.

With gratitude and hope,

Brian Mason

Minister, First Universalist Unitarian Church of Wausau
